THE SILVER PROBLEM.

A Fruitless Meeting Held by the Senate

Washington, May 3.—The Republican senate cancus committee on silver had another meeting today. Several of the members were absent and no attempt, was made to commit those present to the support of any one of the several propositions that have been before the committee from time to time. A general discussion revealed the fact that the two parties on the question of authorizing the secretary of the treasury to redeem bullion purchase notes with builtien were as widely apart as ever. The committee adjourned without fixing a time for reassembling.

Liquor Men and Prohibitionists on the "Original Package" Case.

New York, May 3.—The decision of the United States supreme court in the suit known as the "original package" case seems likely to exert an important influence on the future of prohibition. The decision affirms that an imhabitant of any state may under the operations of the interstate commerce laws and without license or supervision of any public authority carry or send into and sell in the other states any intoxicating liquors in cases or kegs or even in single bottles or flasks, despite any legislation of those states on the subject and although his own state should be the only one which had not enacted similar laws. This will have a bearing not only on states where prohibition prevails, but throughout the country.

where prohibition prevails, but throughout the country.

Mr. A. E. J. Trovey, editor of the Brewers' association, said yesterday; "The effect of this decision will be to encourage the consumption of malt liquors in the prohibition states. Of course, the result of this enlarged consumption will be to supply a market for the products of manufacturers outside of the prohibition states, as they will not be allowed to manufacture either malt or spirituous liquors within the state.

"But the great benefit consequent upon this decision consists in the fact that it will stamp out to a great extent the dispensing of cheap whiskies—vile compounds that are sold at high figures; the miserable stuff which maddens those who drink it and causes all the trouble. These compounds are dispensed surreptitiously by drug stores and perambulating barrooms in all the prohibition states, and in lowa and Kansas particularly. I suppose the decision will affect the localities where local option exists.
"I resurd it as a most righteous decision." local option exists.

"I regard it as a most righteous decision—a common-sense decision—and I hope the people in Iowa will soon awake to the the people in Iowa will soon awake to the necessity of common sense being exercised on the question of malt and spirituous beverages. For the people will have them, and unquestionably the people prefer malt liquors to what is now dispensed in the prohibition states. The importation of bad liquor reached its maximum prior to the rendering of this decision, and its consumption will now certainly decrease.

"It is not long since that a colony of 20,000 Swedes left the state on account of the law. This decision of the supreme court will have the effect of bringing in the German, Scandinavian and other beer the German, Scandinavian and other beer drinking people under the new order of affairs, sarred by the action of the highest legal tribunal."

The editor of Bonfort's Wine and Spirit

"The removal of the restrictions of the "One resort, and one only, remains to the prohibitionists in this emergency. The courts of last resort having decided against them, they may apply to congress for the enactment of a national prohibitory law. But there is not much likelihood of their being successful in that direction."

A BURGLAR'S CLOSE CALL.

EMPORIA Kan, May 3.—Last night about 12 o'clock a burglar was discovered in the residence of T. J. Atcheson and the neighborhood aroused. It proved to be a man disguised in woman's clothing. He was closely pursued and hearly captured, but finally escaped through a vacant stable, although it is believed he was hally wounded, as several revolver shots were fired at him at pretty close range and he was brought to his knees once. He evidently had an accomplice, as he blew a peculiar call on a whistle while being pursued. Numerous burglaries have recently taken place here, and the citizens deciare that trial will be unnecessary should they succeed in capturing one of the criminals.
